known as old Fort Pierce road, on the east side of the Black Hills, striking the road about halfway between the Missouri river and the Black Hills, and then runs straight to the agency. Sitting Bull sends word to my agent to Bissonette and to Bouchet that he does not intended to molest any one south of the Black Hills, but will fight the whites in that country as long as the question is unsettled and not settled, as long as he lives. As soon as the Black Hills question is settled, he wants my agent to send word and tell him what to do. He says he finds a great many guns and other things about the Hills where the white men have killed each other and left them on the prairies. Sitting Bull asked how the Brules were treated at their agency. I told him well; but he does not believe it. He does not want to fight the whites, only to steal from them as they have done. The white men steal and the Indians won't come to settlement. the whites kill themselves and make the Black Hills stink with so many dead men. He heard that the Indians coming from the agency would not be allowed to return. He has made a law that no visitors shall pass between the agency and his camp, either Indians or whites. When the rascality about the Black Hills is settled, then he will stop his rascality. The government has promised much to agency people that never was fulfilled, and it wants to move agencies again. If they are moved, who will occupy the land? It belongs to you, if you remain where you are. I want you to send me word. If the good white people won't listen to the Great Father no more, will your young men listen to their chiefs? Sitting Bull says that if troops come out to him he must fight them; but if they do not come out he intends to visit this agency, and he will counsel his people for peace.

Bear stand up, who makes this statement, is reliable. He was in Sitting Bull camp nineteen days, from about May 25 to June 15.

WASHINGTON CITY.

Failed to Ag...

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The conference this morning on the legislative and judicial appropriation bills was without result.

The conferees on the army appropriation bill intend to arrange, if possible, for their own reappointment, and as the senate will, in this event, undoubtedly reappoint its present members of the conference committee, there will be an evident dead lock on this bill, just as there is now on the Indian appropriation bill, which is in the hands of a second conference committee. Nothing done to-day in regard to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. It is not probable any agreement will be reached concerning the three last bills until the general principles at issue shall have been settled by an agreement of the two houses in regard to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, on which a fourth conference committee are making only slow progress.

Rustleating.

The President and Secretary Fish left this morning for Deer Park, Western Maryland.

Israelitish Convention.

WASHINGTON July 13.—The convention of Israelites reassembled this morning. The committee on the seventh section of the President's report, directing the attention of parents to the importance of their sons learning the mercantile business or engaging in agricultural pursuits, reported that they were of the opinion that it would add to the prosperity of the rising generation if they would engage in mechanical or agricultural pursuits, because a merchant's career is too hazardous; adopted.

The special committee appointed to consider sections 3, 4, 5 and 6 of the President's report, urges upon parents to send their children to Sabbath school and competent English teachers should be appointed for the school; that a strict observance of the Sabbath can be obtained by urging upon the rising generation the necessity of observing that day, and by making the programme of that day as useful and interesting as possible; that the account of the proceedings of the Council be forwarded to different congregations, with an earnest appeal for their assistance. The report was adopted.

The convention then adjourned to meet in Philadelphia on the second Tuesday in July, 1877.

The executive board was organized by electing Moritz Loth, president; Julius Freiburg, vice president; Lipman Levy, secretary; Solomon Levy, treasurer. The secretary gave a bond for $4,000 and the treasurer a bond for $20,000.

The board of directors for the Hebrew Union College was organized by the election of B. Betterman, president; Jacob Corn, vice president; Jacob Kaeckel, secretary.

The President's Charges against Bristow.

NEW YORK, July 14.—The Herald's Washington special says the President is profoundly convinced that he was the victim of considerable treachery in the Cabinet. He is persuaded that Bristow, while procuring the conviction of the Western whisky thieves, in which it is asserted he had always the countenance of his chief, used every opportunity to cast dangerous and unjust suspicions upon the motives and course of the President; that while the eyes of fellow men were fixed upon the public service, the other was fixed upon the President. The charges against Bristow are that he filled the offices with his devoted personal followers, and advanced his personal fortune at Grant's expense. Grant's friends claim that Bristow's reputation with the public is engineered; that he is a person of no ability; that he is by exact of public affairs; that he is merely a good executive clerk, and is a man of unscrupulous politics, which he attempted to gratify by basely allowing his followers to attack and traduce the character and fair fame of his chief, who spared him out of pity, and whom he ought to have ejected ages ago in disgrace.

Pinchback's Claim—$30,000.

The World's Washington special says Pinchback turned up at the Senate to-day with a demand for the $30,000 voted him a few days ago, but was refused for the reason that the contingent fund did not contain enough to pay him, and an additional appropriation bill will be required. Pinchback is anxious for the money that he may return to Louisiana and work with it in the campaign to secure the Legislature.

Proceedings in the Naval Investigation.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Before the House naval committee to-day, Zachary Robeson showed that he is becoming secretary of the Navy, his owned real estate in Camden, New Jersey, valued at $25,000, and had an annual income of $7,500.

Removals.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The President to-day ordered Morrill to remove Auditor Mahan, Supervising Architect Potter, and Washburn, chief of the secret service. He also indicated his desire to have Dr. X... d, late ... d comptroller, removed and made first auditor, and Butterfield, late chief clerk in the second comptroller's office, to be fifth auditor. These two men were dismissed by Bristow for sufficient cause. Mullet will unquestionably be Potter's successor. Blackburn, late prosecuting attorney of Hamilton county, Ohio, is to be made solicitor of the treasury.

Dr. Linderman's Views Respecting the Decline in Silver.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Linderman, director of the mint, speaking of the rapid decline in silver, says it has now reached a point where Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and Italy must either shoulder the German surplus of silver or prepare to abandon the double standard and adopt a purely gold currency. The reason is that silver is more valuable in those countries where it is used as currency than where it has been demonetized and it will therefore flow low to those countries where it commands the highest price. Should the United States at this time return to the double standard, it would be placed in the same embarrassing position which France now holds. If the nations which still maintain the double standard continue to adhere to it, the gold they have now in circulation will disappear and be thrown in large quantities upon the English and other markets including the United States. This would tend strongly to restore equitability between the two metals throughout Europe. If the United states adheres to the present policy, the great decrease in the value of silver may, by causing an accumulation of gold in England and this country, make it easier than it otherwise would have been for the United States to resume specie payments on the 1st of January, 1879, or at some subsequent date not far in the future.

Wilson Declares his Books Correct.

James S. Wilson, ex district treasurer, has arrived from New York. Wilson states that he was detained in that city in consequence of illness, and he will show to the entire satisfaction of his friends and the public that his accounts are all right, and that he did not intend to absond as he had become aware of. Wilson brought back with him a draft on New York for the money heretofore stated to be deficient.

Miners for Silkine.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—The Treasury Department has received a report from the collector of customs at Sitka saying that at the mouth of the Silkine river, Alaska, on the 15th of May there were over two white miners and 200 Indians—men, women and children—all en route for the Custar mines. The river opened on the 24th of May, and the party commenced to ascend, camping along the banks.

The Roumanian Chambers held a secret sitting to consider the request of Russia to permit the passage of a large number of volunteers to Servia.

Fatal Accident on a Turret Ship.

PORTSMOUTH, July 14.—An accident, the nature of which is unknown, occurred on the turret ship Thunder on her trial trip. A large number of the injured have been taken to the naval hospital. It is reported that the boiler burst, killing fifteen and wounding thirty-two.

LONDON, July 14.—The chief and assistant engineers are among the killed, and Capt. Wilson's hand was blown off. The Thunderer was making a trial trip on the measured mile in Stokes Bay. The vessel is now at Spithead.

Twenty one persons were killed and 60 wounded by the explosion on board of the Thunderer. Many of the wounded cannot recover. A still later dispatch says it is feared that 26 are fatally wounded.

Servians Routed and Town Burned.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 14.—The Turks yesterday crossed into Servia and routed the troops near Kelutercdewsa and burned the town.

The Turks Defeated.

RAGUSA, July 14.—The Turks were defeated near Klek yesterday, with a loss of 150 killed and 15 prisoners. The insurgent loss is small. The Turks were also compelled to abandon their intrenched position before Salatzcher.

The Times' Pesquin dispatch gives the following account of Wednesday's fighting: Osman Pasha in great force attacked the Servian army corps under Gen. Leschanine, near Saitschar. The troops of the latter attempted to storm the Servian position, and were repulsed. Meanwhile the Servian columns, under Gen Ostaych, attacked Osman Pasha's rear, and captured several villages. The Turkish gunboats on the Danube attacked Gen. Ostaych, but without result. The Servian Telegraphic Agency confirms the report that the harbor of Klek, on the Adriatic, has been closed. It also announces that Cetaro has been closed. The Times' Berlin special says the closing of Klek will it is believed, seriously damage the Turks, as thereafter it will be impossible to send reinforcements to Bosnia and Herzegovina, except through the narrow strip of Bosnian territory between Montenegro and Servia, which is at present invaded by three Servian columns.

Parliamentary Deputation to Visit Philadelphia.

LONDON, July 14.—The Daily News says the suggestion that a representative body of members of Parliament shall visit Philadelphia seems to be taking tangible shape. The idea of having a government steamer has been abandoned, but was understood that the White Star Company have placed the Adriatic at the disposal of the committee which has been formed to make the necessary arrangements.

Proposed Annexation of Territory to Austria.

The Daily News' Vienna dispatch says the authorities there are receiving petitions for annexation to Austria from Bosnian Catholics. The Mohammedan Beys have held a meeting and expressed their loyalty to the Porte, but agreed that Austrian was preferable to Servian rule.

The London Times Reviews Lord Derby's Note.

The Times reviews at some length Lord Derby's note to the Porte. Secretary Fish sets up a case not to be easily repelled, but where he passes to the substance of the question at issue, it is harder to follow him with cordial agreement. We cannot dismiss the hope that the American government, upon a calm review of the circumstances, will agree that if a new treaty be formed, the principles which Secretary Fish was willing to accept in 1872, 1873 and 1875 may be taken as the basis rather than those for which he now argues so vigorously.

Position of France on the Eastern Question.

VERSAILLES, July 13.—In the Chamber of Deputies to day, Duc de Cazes, minister of foreign affairs, replying to M. Louis Blanc in regard to Eastern affairs, said the government wished that France might not be involved in events abroad in such a manner as could possibly hinder the restoration of internal peace. France must only intervene in a purely pacific sense. It is our part to associate ourselves with any efforts made to preserve an understanding between the powers. This understanding should not be effected during the conflict, but we can not but accept with satisfaction, namely: on a basis of non intervention. This circumstance tends to circumscribe the conflict, to the great advantage of the whole world. France has no special interest in the question, and therefore no reason to take the initiative. The honor and interests of France have never been for a moment compromised.

Communists Pardoned.

PARIS July 14.—The official statement just made public shows that 249 Communists have been pardoned, 3rd rejected, and 109 are still consideration.

News from the Seat of War in Turkey.

BUCHAREST, July 13.—Gen Imeritzenis, who according to the latest intelligence, had penetrated some distance into Palschek, a province of Widdin, yesterday attacked the Turkish positions and captured several strategic points. The fighting lasted the whole day. The Servian loss was small. The Servians pursued the Turks to Widdin and Montana, capturing quantities of provisions. The gate of Widdin is now closed.

The Christian League Petitions Lord Derby in the Interest of Neutrality.

LONDON, July 14.—An influential deputation to wait on Lord Derby on the Eastern question will present a petition, signed by Earl Russell as patron of the league, in aid of the Christians of Turkey, and reciting, among other things, that all Europe sympathizes with the oppressed Christians, while England alone supports their oppressors, thus implying that their Christianity is only a profession and their love of liberty an empty boast. The petitioners pray Lord Derby, in the interest of peace, that he will withhold English support, moral and political, from the Sultan's government and permit the Christians of Europe and Turkey to carve out their future destiny without any foreign intervention whatever.

Lord Derby's Reply.

Lord Derby this afternoon received the deputation of the Christian League, and severely criticised their memorial, though in the main he expressed sympathy with their objects. In regard to the atrocities, he said doubtless both sides had committed them. John Bright presented the memorial in favor of strict neutrality, except when it may be possible to interpose friendly offices to mitigate the horrors and hasten the close of the conflict. Replying Lord Derby said as far as human foresight goes, with the views of the several powers before us, a general war was most unlikely to result from the present conflict. He had refused to adhere to the Berlin memorandum because it was a compromise between Powers who were desirous of acting together, yet not quite eager. He did not think that the compromise would instantly work. He felt sure that the Porte would not accept it, nor even the insurgents. The rendezvous of the fleet in Besika Bay was not England's initiative, but all ambassadors at Constantinople who wanted to be protected against eventualities and against the massacre of British and other subjects. France and Italy, for financial and other reasons, do not desire war. Germany has no direct interest in the question. England will not make war. Austria, though peculiarly placed, will not break the peace. For reasons of self interest, a powerful party in Russia sympathizes with the Selavonians and desires the creation of a Slavonic Empire under Russian guidance and influence, but is certainly not in power. The Czar is a sincere lover of peace, and Russia has other reasons—her finances and the Czarina of her Asian conquests for not wishing war. The understanding reached at Reichstadt was on the basis of absolute non interference during the conflict, including a force in favor of peace, but if any steps should be taken, they would be in concert with all the powers. England's endeavor is to keep the conflict within its present limits and to impress that view upon the others. Lord Derby said he had no doubt of England's success, and continued: all we desire to see is fair play. If Turkey is defeated, we cannot help it. We have guaranteed Turkey against murder, but not suicide and sudden death. If an opportunity of mediation offers, which opportunity may even now be at hand we shall avail our selves of it.

Foreign Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, July 14.—The leading grain circular, issued to-day, in review of the past week, says the unfavorable weather and the continued large arrivals of foreign grain and the unusually favorable weather. Although the markets show but little change, trade was quiet owing to comparatively trifling deliveries of new grain wheat further declined 1pt quarter for best qualities. White inferior qualities declined 2d at quarter reduction. The extent of business has been very limited. The market to-day has been poorly attended. Business in wheat was quite of a retail character, at a decline of fully 2d per cental from Tuesday's prices. Flour nominal and unchanged. Corn dull and only cheapest quality supports present prices, inferior quality tends downward.

Railway War in the Courts.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—In the fifth district court to-day, on motion of A. A. Cohen, attorney for John R. Robinson, stockholder of the Central Pacific Railroad Co., to set aside the judgment of the court rendered Tuesday last, that the endorsement of the bonds of the California Pacific by the Central Pacific was valid. Judge Wheeler said he did not feel justified in rescinding the judgment already entered. The application was made to obtain a judgment on an agreed statement of facts, and the supreme court can pass upon the legality of the proceedings. The court thereupon vacated the order to stay proceedings, and the motion to intervene was withdrawn.

The case of the Central Pacific Railroad Co., against Alfred A. Cohen came up before the 12th district court to-day on plaintiff's motion to be allowed to file an amended answer to the amended complaint; allowed. The action is set for trial on the main issues for Tuesday next.

The case of Leland Standford and E. H. Miller, charged with misdemeanor in refusing John R. Robinson access to certain papers was continued in police court this afternoon, by consent of both parties till next Friday.

Bay View Distillery Case.

The proceedings instituted by the government for the condemnation of the Bay View distillery property will come up for trial Tuesday next.

Jumped from a Third-story Window.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 14.—This morning, James McCabe jumped from a third-story window to the sidewalk and was instantly killed. Deceased, while engaged in decorating the Pacific Foundry for the Fourth, fell from a cornice, receiving injuries which have since confined him to his bed. While his attendant was asleep he, evidently in a fit of delirium, threw himself from the window. He was a native of Ireland, single, and aged 24 years.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Sudden Death of E. A. Starr.

OLYMPIA, July 14.—Capt. E. A. Starr of the steamer Annie Stewart died at this place to-day at 3 o'clock P. M. He retired last night unwell and was found in his stateroom this morning in an unconscious state from which it was impossible to arouse him.

CRIME AND CASUALTIES.

Last Thursday night the casa killed four sheep on the track opposite Z. Wood's farm, near Hillsboro.

Last Thursday morning, as the west side train came down, a box car jumped off of the track near Hillsboro, and ran on the ties for a quarter of a mile, doing no other damage than cutting up the ties considerably.

A man by the name of Hans A. Christianson, who was working on the rolling-tier in the mill in Port Blakely, got caught in between the carriage and some long timbers, and had one of his legs cut in a most horrible manner.

Two men named Baker and McKinney had a fight at McMinnville on the 4th, in which Baker used a knife and McKinney got in a few blows on his antagonist's head with an empty pistol. Neither did any serious damage. Baker fled.

In Butte precinct, Washington county, on the 3d inst., the case of the State of Oregon vs. Hume, for assault with a dangerous weapon, was examined before Justice Carpenter, and the prisoner was bound over in the sum of $2,000 to appear for trial at the next term of the circuit court.

One day last week, as Wm. R. Dunbar and party were going from their camp to Newport in a wagon, to which four horses were attached, one of the wheel horses became frightened and jumped over the lead-bar, falling as such a way as to break his neck, and somebody is out a good but foolish horse.

Mr. A. McFarland, who resides about two miles and a half east of Salem, met with a severe accident on the 12th, while engaged in felling some timber. The tree that he chopped down lodged on an oak grub, and in order to allow it to fall to the ground, he commenced cutting away the grub, which flew back and hit him in the face, inflicting a very painful wound, lacerating his mouth and nose in a fearful manner.

The Albany Democrat says: John McNeal, Jr., living about two miles from Peoria, met with an accident on the 4th that will probably prove fatal. He was chopping the trunk of a large windfall that had been uprooted from the stump. As he finished the cut he stepped upon the stump, which, upon being severed from the tree, flew back with great force into an upright position, throwing McNeal into the air some 20 feet. In falling he struck his abdomen across a log, and so seriously injuring him that it is thought he cannot recover.

From from the Coos Bay News, of July 12th: "Mrs. E. P. Phillips, a woman of rather an unenviable reputation attempted to play the roll of Laura D. Fair, in Empire City, last Friday, one of our prominent citizens taking the other leading part in the play. Mrs. P. stepped up to her intended victim and jovingly placed the muzzle of an improved Smith & Wesson against his head and fired, but he gently moved his head to one side and permitted the ball to pass under his chin, and escaped with his face and neck slightly burned with powder; when he, thinking he was shot, immediately went to his house where she followed him, and shot at him twice more, he striking the revolver with a cane at the last shot which turned the muzzle so as to shoot off the third finger of her left hand, about this time the gentleman's wife came upon the scene and proved her poor marksmanship by a harmless shot in the direction of Mrs. Phillips. And thus ends the fourth act in the tragedy, first, second and third not given."

CHANGING HIS MIND.—He laid four dimes and a quart bottle on the counter and informed the bar-keeper that he wanted a bottle of fine whisky. "None of yer dog goned rotgut for me," he said, "I want the jimmy wine article, suthin' that will revive the recollections of 'Little the noble breast;' suthin' what's got age to it." But when the bar-keeper told him that whisky of that quality was worth $2 a bottle, he said he wasn't a bit particular; that he didn't go much on style nohow, and that he would go to a house where the bar-keeper didn't wear diamonds and mustake every customer for the owner of the Manhattan hotel. "When it comes right down to it," he said, "there ain't much difference in whisky, some a little better than the other but it's all good, and it's only a question of time and a matter of taste at best."

From the Tidings the number of money orders issued by the Seattle postoffice during the quarter ending June 30, was 569, amounting to $16,122 62. Of these, 541 were domestic, amounting to $15,230 97, 15 were to Canada, amounting to $301, and 8 were orders on Great Britain for $151. Of the total receipts, $10,518 were remitted, and the remainder retained to meet payments. The receipts for the past half year have aggregated $30,278 56. The total remittances last year were only $21,025.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 14.—Sherman submitted the report of conference committee on joint resolution for issue of silver coin.

Bogy, of conference committee, said he concurred in the report although it did not accomplish the object he desired which was to make silver a legal tender for any amount. He concurred in the report because the session was far advanced and he felt the necessity of providing subsidiary coin for the people.

Jones also spoke in opposition, when the report was agreed to and the impeachment trial resumed.

Evans being still absent, the court adjourned till Monday, with the understanding that the trial shall then proceed.

The Senate resumed the consideration of the river and harbor appropriation bill and a number of amendments proposed by the committee were agreed to.

Kidder introduced a bill to aid in the construction of a railway and telegraph line from Fort Abraham Lincoln to the Little Missouri, referred.

The appropriation committee's amendments for the Willamette and Columbia rivers were agreed to.

Pending the discussion, Thurman from the conference committee on the bill to amend the bankrupt law submitted a report which was agreed to. The report provides simply for the modification, instead of the total repeal of section 5,106 of the Revised Statutes, concerning discharges in bankruptcy; adjourned.

House.

(Continuation of Mr. Garfield's speech on the conference committee's report on the silver question:)

We are solemnly bound by the act of 1869 to pay our bonds in coin or its equivalent. Do you say you can pay them in depreciated silver and still keep to the law of equivalency, which was the spirit of the law of 1869? You violate the law when you violate a very essential word of it. Equivalency—the whole meaning is that there is in the human mind a sort of longing to get a chance to cheat somebody. I have never, since I have been in public life, seen any proposition which had in it so many of the essential elements of absolute swindling. I do not say that is its purpose, but it is its effect. You may recollect the old shock of 1837 and the later shock of 1857, and again in 1873. Put them all together and the financial crisis and utter break down of this country in all of them combined would be light compared with the shock which this proposition would bring upon the country. It has been always true that where there were two legal standards of money the weaker and less valuable will drive out the more valuable. Put this law into operation as suggested and every particle of gold coin will leave the country just as fast as it can, and be exported abroad. Do that, and a revolution in financial and monetary affairs, utterly unparalleled in the history of the nation, will follow the act. The conference report was adopted—yeas 129, nays 75.

Sparks, from the conference committee on the Indian appropriation bill, reported that the committee was unable to agree, the same committee—Kandall, Sparks and Hurlbut—was reappointed.

Wait, from the select committee to investigate the charges preferred by White, of Kentucky, against Adams, clerk of the House, for interfering to influence legislation, reported that there was no foundation whatever for the charge.

Lynde Lord and Frye were appointed a committee of conference on the bankrupt bill. Adjourned.

A resolution was adopted directing the Secretary of the Navy to prevent the destruction of the wreck of the monitor Tecumseh, sunk in Mobile harbor, and to repurchase the wreck if necessary.

Poppleton reported a resolution in the Massachusetts contested election case, declaring that Frost, the sitting member, is not entitled to the seat, and that Abbott is. A vote was taken on the minority report declaring Frost entitled to the seat, which resulted, ayes 79, nays 101, and then the majority report was agreed to without division.

Lynde, from the conference committee on the bill to amend the bankruptcy act, made a report which was adopted. Adjourned.

INDIAN RESERVATIONS AND TREATIES

A day or two ago the attention of Congress was taken up for some time with debating a bill for the sale of a certain Indian reservation in Kansas and Nebraska It is but a little while since a partially successful effort was made to change the boundaries of an Indian reservation in this State That reservation had never been formally made such according to the technical rules of land law, but it had been treated as such for nearly twenty years, and so far as concerned the matter of letting the Indians see that they were fairly dealt with, was a reservation The Umatilla reservation too is an object of continued desire by the whites and efforts are making from time to time to have it vacated by the Indians and thrown open to settlement These efforts will yet succeed, and their success will leave on the minds of a very large proportion of the Indians an impression that the government does not regard its treaty obligations when it is to the interests of white people to have them disregarded

Do not these frequent cases of abrogation and attempts at abrogation of treaties suggest that the entire policy of treating with the Indian tribes as if they were independent and sovereign nations is radically erroneous" They are not equal powers, but subject people They are not nations, but bands of individuals whom it is inhuman to destroy and impossible to regard as nations Would it not be better, and in the end cheaper, to assert at once the right to govern them, abrogate all treaty relations with them, on as easy and friendly terms as possible, and gradually gather them all into the Indian territory, where if they are capable of civilization, as we have faith they are, they could be governed, protected, provided with homes, and developed to their best possibilities? That Territory is ample for them all It would support a population of two or three millions of people, whereas the Indians of the United States number less than a quarter of a million, all told These treaties and reservations badges of independence, without any of the rights and benefits of independence, are a source of continued trouble, with no compensating good results. Why not treat the Indians as if they were just what they are, untutored people, to be cared for, to be educated, to be protected against the rapacity of the dominant race, to be elevated, to be governed? By this course, if the opinion of those who believe in the humane policy of treatment of them is correct, they would in the course of time, and no great length of time at that, be settled upon their separate tracts of land like the white people, would be inspired and encouraged by the sense of proprietorship, and thus brought to respect the rights of each other and of the white race.

PACIFIC RAILWAY LEGISLATION

A bill has been reported by the Senate judiciary committee amending in important particulars the acts of 1862 and 1864 granting subsidies to the Union Pacific and Central Pacific railways and their branches A statutory definition of the phrase "net earnings" of the road is given, the importance of which is in this fact, that the original law provided the company should pay to the government annually 5 per cent of the "net earnings," and the companies have construed this to mean [illegible] allowing in the account not only the expense of operating the roads but interest on the capital invested By this construction the amount of "net earnings" on which the 5 per cent was paid was reduced to a merely nominal sum Congress decides the [illegible] net earnings shall be the original [illegible] Judge's earnings [illegible] of the original act [illegible] see [illegible] not the [illegible] of the law, the meaning can be changed by a legislative definition The courts and not the legislative power are vested with the power to construe contracts, and hence actually bills, when accepted and acted upon by the companies become contracts

The next point in the amendments is to require the Secretary of the Treasury to retain all moneys earned by the companies by transportation for the government, applying one half thereof to pay interest on the existing bonds, and reserving the other half for a sinking fund The right to receive these earnings was asserted by the government under the original acts, but was successfully contested by the Union Pacific Company a year or two ago, first before the court and afterwards on appeal to the Supreme Court How the government can now enforce the terms of the law, to the disadvantage of the railway companies, does not very clearly appear Possibly there has been a compromise effected by which the corporations accept the new interpretation of the laws The general power of the government over the roads could, of course, be used as a means of compelling acquiescence in a fair and just interpretation of the law, and it is not improbable that a recognition of the extent to which in spite of technical advantages, they were at the mercy of the government has brought the managers of the roads to their senses and to a sense of justice Whatever may be the explanation, it is manifest that the government has resolved to put a stop to the course of conduct by which the companies have done the country out of millions of dollars, unjustly and in violation of the spirit of the agreement under which they have enjoyed unexampled favors from the government and grown rich out of the treasury of the nation

THE TURKO-SERVIAN WAR

South work goes on in European Turkey. From occasional skirmishing with negotiations for adjustment interspersed, the insurrection has grown to an open and vigorous struggle for independence Engagements which are not skirmishes but battles are of almost daily occurrence with alternations of victory and defeat on both sides in accordance with usual fortunes of war. Meanwhile Prince Milan's name is plied upon the badges of the insurgents as Milan I, King of Servia Whether he will be able to maintain himself and establish a European monarchy on the ruins of the Turkish empire west of the Dardanelles remains a matter of conjecture It would scarcely be such however if the cause of the great Western powers were fully settled Their interference would end the contest in favor of the Ottoman empire or their adherence to a policy of strict neutrality would almost certainly give success to the revolutionists

The mode of warfare adopted by the Turks is in keeping with the traditions of their civilization They make no prisoners but butcher whomsoever falls into their hands The Servians, on the other hand true to their European blood endeavor to conduct the war on their side in accordance with the usages of civilized nations By this magnanimous conduct toward a cruel and barbarous foe, they entitle themselves to the sympathy of Christian nations But Christian sympathy and statecraft are not always in harmony the political designs of the Western nations especially of Russia and England, will be the controlling influence in shaping their course, and those designs may render it necessary and convenient for the Western Christians to assist the Asiatic Mohammedans in crushing out a brave and generous Christian people and rivet the chains of slavery upon them for an indefinite period

Another gun for Hayes and Wheeler and a 74 pounder this time The Liberals of New York have decided to support them, and it is estimated that the result will be a difference of some thirty or forty thousand votes in their favor in the Empire State So it goes all over the country. The shuffling and prevaricating of the Democrats, on the subject of the currency is having the effect which their shuffling and prevaricating in all their national conventions for the last ten years has had it is disgusting all who are not tied up to party names, and is bringing thousands of votes to the Republican candidates A party without principles can not command the confidence of intelligent and independent voters An open and manly contest was the only hope of the Democracy, and that hope they have frittered away by a cowardly attempt to conciliate all classes Playing fast and loose with important national questions does not win in this reading age

We have heard it said that Hayes manly letter may lose him votes by offending the professional politicians, Those who talk thus do not understand the temper of the people The country has waited long and, of late, not too patiently, for just such manliness For every politician offended by his letter, Hayes will secure ten votes of honest Republicans who are not politicians and would not accept even the decision of a national convention without a candidate in whose integrity and soundness on the vital question of reform they could not trust implicitly

Hayes and Wheeler, civil service reform and hard money, or Tilden and Hendricks, political spoils for political services and indefinite postponement of the return to the money of the Constitution. that is the question the American people are called on to decide.

The Belknap impeachment trial drags along, exciting no interest The case has already been decided by the people and no one except those immediately concerned cares how it is decided in the Senate

The late summer rains are making up for the unpropitious spring, and Oregon is going to produce her regular yield of wheat. The Webfoot nation never goes back on her people.

BRIEF NOTES.

The county court will convene to-day

Sliced tomatoes with ice over them is the latest

Pioneers will meet for practice to-day at 5 P. M. on their grounds.

Hop scotch is in full bloom. Every urchin has caught the infection.

The condition of Mr. Samuel Sherlock was more hopeful last evening.

A party of young men are preparing to take a trip in a sailboat to the coast.

Osceola, the favorite running horse is an invalid and is undergoing treatment.

A number of men are engaged in repairing sidewalks and Nicolson pavement.

The city seems dreadfully dull after the bustle and excitement of last week.

Not a case in police court yesterday morning. What is the world coming to?

There has not been a case of accidental drowning about the city for some time

It is the early fly that catches unpoor worms who would like to sleep in the morning.

One of the greatest objects of interest in the floral world at present is the rising sunflower.

About fifty head of beef cattle came down last evening on the Oneonta from Eastern Oregon.

The odor of decayed fruit pervades the atmosphere in the vicinity of many of the fruit stores.

Low cut walking shoes are just the thing for the ladies now, but they make stockings more expensive.

The sun begins to drop away from the north and the days get shorter, as you may observe this evening.

The river at this place is about nine feet lower than at the highest point attained a few weeks since.

A trotting match between "Mystery" and "Parrott" is on the tapis for next Saturday at White Horse course.

The saddle which has been at the police court for some days was claimed yesterday, and delivered to the owner.

A light thunder storm passed over the country Thursday evening, which did much good in purifying the atmosphere.

If green apples are not ripe about the commencement of the summer vacation, they must go down anyhow, regardless of consequences.

Those of a poetical disposition who desire to have a glimpse at the "moon behind the hill," can be accommodated if they have patience to sit up long enough.

A big lunch was sent to this office a few nights since. The name of the good Samaritan did not accompany it, but he has our thanks all the same, though late to acknowledge,

RIVER AND COAST IMPROVEMENTS.

There is no very material change, so far as depth is concerned on the bar.

The recent survey of Sand Island shows that its movement northward—as shown in previous surveys is continued even more rapidly.

On the 28th of June, a new lantern was put up at Cape Arago, which shows very brilliantly. It is a double wick, fourth order Funck lamp.

It is expected that surveys will be made the present season of Coquille River and Coos Bay, and projects prepared for the improvement of the same,

A working party has completed the repairs of the light stations at Point Adams, Cape Hancock and Shoalwater Bay, and are now engaged in building a boat house, and making some minor repairs at Cape Flattery.

Mr. R. A. Habersham is at present engaged in making a careful examination of the channel of the Upper Willamet between Corvallis and Salem, for the purpose of locating the various wing dams to be constructed this season.

The dredger has been thoroughly overhauled and is in perfect order, ready for resuming operations at a day's notice. High water has prevented operations for the past two months. When the stage of water will permit, work will probably be commenced at Postoffice bar.

The contractors, Messrs. Peter Pacquet & F. K. Pacquet, for constructing wing dams along the Upper Willamet, will probably commence work next week. Work will be commenced first at Half-moon bend. Two gangs of men will be employed at different places, and the work is to be pushed forward with all possible vigor to an early completion. During the present season wing dams will be put in at nine different bars between Corvallis and Salem, and a quantity of rock will be removed from two different points.

The government snag boat is now at work just below Peoria, at what is known as the "Turn-table" The river is cutting at that point a new channel, straighter and much shorter than the old one. This new channel has been called by Col. Wilson, the "Centennial cut-off." During the last month the snag boat removed from the river a little above Peoria, a tree 240 feet long and about 24 feet in circumference, estimated to weigh in the vicinity of 100 tons. This is the largest obstruction ever removed from the channel of the Willamet by the snag boat.

Thursday an effort was made at Albany to sell at auction the lighthouse, keeper's dwelling, land, etc., at Yaquina Bay, which was discontinued as a light station two years ago, by order of the government, on the recommendation of a special board appointed to investigate the matter and report as to the necessity of maintaining a station on that portion of the coast. There are thirty six acres of land included in the station, and buildings, which were erected at a cost of about $10,000. The highest bid offered for the whole property was $600, and Col. Wilson, in behalf of the government, deeming it unadvisable to dispose of so much valuable property at such a small sum, withdrew it from the market.

The Sunday Welcome of to-morrow will contain the opening chapters of an interesting serial story, entitled "The Shadow of a Sin," written by one of the ablest authors of the day. Orders for the paper may be left with J. K. Gill & Co., The Blum, S. L. Stone, or at the Welcome office. Delivered to city subscribers for 25 cents each four weeks. Country edition, by mail, $2 a year.

"My son, if you would have glory, don't spend your life working for it. Be honest, and it will come to you." "Pop," frankly replied the boy, "if I could have strawberries and cream all the year round, I wouldn't care for glory." The glory of man is said to be his strength, but "our bust young men" say it is a new summer suit from Fishel & Roberts.

It is not an unusual thing, now-a-days, for pedestrians in Kentucky, where most showers occur, to witness wild-eyed men gesticulating skyward and yelling, "No more corn beef! Send down some small on toast!" They will be next expecting it to rain new suits from Beck & Waldman's.

While your wife is at the seaside, go to Barnes' for lunch.

There is an truth in the report that Henry Heckenstein, 147 First street, is not able to keep up with the demand for Noble Whiskey. He is the sole agent and is continually receiving fresh arrivals to stock.

Dr. McBride's great remedy, "The World's Relief," can be procured at the Office of the Cosmopolitan Hotel. It cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia; also regulates the Kidneys and Liver. Price, $1 per bottle.

One of the coolest spots in town is the "Fountain," where Peter Wilhelm holds forth. He keeps the best liquors and cigars, and Weinhardt's best beer. His billiard tables are excellent, and the "Virginnas" pool table continues a favorite.

The Centennial is over, and our country cousins, as well as the city folks have had to abundance of amusements. All who have paid a visit to Jos. Kohn's clothing house express themselves the thoroughly satisfied with the manner in which he treats them

CORNS AND BUNIONS

Extracted and cured by Dr. Hip no pain. Chiropody, without ruinin pain or inconvenience. Satisfaction guaranteed. Orders left at Jos. Kohn's clothing store, First street, will be promptly attended to.

LINES

FOR THE OREGONIAN. PORTLAND, JULY 11, 1876.

Dead? Dead is my beautiful boy?
Is this what the world calls dead?
Shall I never again behold him in joy
Nor rest on my bosom that curly head?

Shall I never again see that laughing blue eye,
Nor list for his feet to come up gay?
Oh, why must our loved ones sicken and die,
And be laid in the dark grave away?

* * * * * * *

Weep not dear friend for your darling boy,
Who was loved so well by all;
His young life, so spotless so free from alloy,
Has but answered a fond Father's call

While I whisper a few words of comfort dear friend,
Come dry your fond eyes, for my heart bleeds for you
Yes tear for tear with these lines I send,
In this sad ordeal you are called to pass through

In his innocent sleep, how much he has gained,
And of a sorrow how much he is free.
Oh, who could be selfish enough to retain
A spirit whom God hath set free?

Death is but sleep! but sleep from earth's sorrows
Eternity is waking! the same as to morrow
And often the dear ones whom we say are sleeping
Nestle lovingly beside us, love's vigils keeping

And so with your Andrew, in spirit he'll come
At the close of the day, when you are all, all alone,
In fancy you'll hear sweet whispers of love,
Breathed like a zephyr from his home above

Earth is not near so far away
From the home of the angels, where loved ones stay;
Above and above they are hovering near
And trying their best our love hearts to cheer.

In tears you have parted with those who have gone
And felt as though life could have no bright morn
But with joy and with smiles you fondly will greet
When life's work is o'er and in death you too sleep.

With loving sympathy, your friend,
SUSIE WITHERELL.

PORTLAND, 1876.

FOR THE LADIES.

Nets for the hair are again coming into vogue.

Guipure net is still preferred for lace pelerines.

Shawls of all sorts appear to be slowly coming into favor again.

Simple bonnets of coarse straw are much ornamented with snow gauze.

Long white scarfs of crepe lisse are now worn as neckties for mourning.

Double-breasted and diagonal fronts are much seen on imported dresses.

Bows and headings to flounces are lined with strongly contrasting colors.

Artificial flowers are abundantly used both on bonnets and for head dresses.

Elderly ladies find guipure lace shawls among the handsome wraps provided for their wear.

For evening dresses a new trimming of richly embroidered wide silk galloons in light colors.

Silk and lisle-thread gloves in gray and ecru, some with puffs at the wrist, are in fashion for the summer days.

Dark myrtle green parasols, bordered with green shaded cocks' plumes, are counted with the Paris ladies' driving parasols.

A new fashion, set by Mlle. Bettina Rothschild, for wearing the bridal veil, gives, in place of the ordinary veil of square tulle, a sort of lace shawl, which is placed forward on the forehead a la Marie Stuart—an arrangement infinitely more becoming than the usual square veil.

The new hats, which are very original in style and introduced for country wear, are known as the maconnais and the auvergnat. The one is all black, with black velvet bows and a thick ruche of black lace all around. The other is of Leghorn straw, and has a wide velvet string passing over the crown, with a large tuft of flowers placed under the brim at the back.

TRUTH HARD TO BELIEVE.—Dr. J. T. Gilman's mare, Fannie, is an equine of unusual intelligence, and some of her peculiarities have previously been recorded. A day or two since, while the doctor was visiting a patient, the horse was left in the yard, as usual, without being fastened. After the doctor went into the house, Fannie walked up the yard and began browsing a rose bush. The servant girl came out and spoke to her, and she turned and walked back to the door. In a few moments the horse returned again, and began to whinnie and stamp on the door-step. The girl came out again, and was not a little startled to see Fannie running out her tongue at her and acting strangely. The organ protruded its entire length, and was kept exposed with a determination worthy of a patient undergoing examination by a physician. The girl finally examined the member and found a thorn from the rose bush had got uncomfortably fastened to it. She removed it, when the thankful animal made a profoud bow and went back and stood quietly by the door until the doctor had completed his call.—Portland Advertiser.

HAIR RESTORED.

If any who are skeptical of the ability of Mrs. S. Lord to produce a crop of new hair in all cases of baldness will call or write to her at her rooms in National Bank building, Portland, she will refer them to several prominent Portland gentlemen who three months since placed themselves under her treatment and are now in possession of a crop of new fine hair which is rapidly increasing in strength and vigor. Itching of the scalp and falling hair checked readily. Preparations sent to all parts of Oregon and Washington.

W. L. ADAMS, M. D., A. M., LL. D., corner of First and Salmon streets, is curing the most inveterate chronic diseases of all kinds at a low price, by medicated, electric lightning cream baths, and by combining the German and French with the American improved practice, mixed with a little common sense. His treatment is, in the main, entirely original, and works almost miracles, as his numerous patients will attest. Is extraordinarily successful in treating female complaints.

RAILWAY CONNECTION

OREGON CITY, July 14, 1876.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

In common with most residents in Oregon, I feel a deep solicitude for the welfare of the State, which can now most effectually be promoted by aiding in some legitimate way, railroad connection from the East. It does not need the glowing enthusiasm of an optimist to paint in too glaring colors the benefits Oregon would derive from such connection, they are patent to all; and until we accomplish this desideratum, we must plod along in the old ancestral way, dreaming of the joys of the future, and bickering at the hum-drum means and methods of the present. The committee on railroad of the Portland board of trade have had much correspondence with C. P. Huntington, manager of the Central Pacific Railroad, to further railroad connection, a correspondence which has been astute and wily on the part of each, and conducted with plenty of diplomatic skill and cunning, in which both parties, seeming to imply much, really offer nothing, as a means to extricate us from our isolation with the world. In the first place, it will be remembered that C. P. Huntington has never made a definite offer to do anything. He has promised that he will keep surveying parties at work in a confessed mountainous country, which must be surmounted to make connection with Oregon, in which the rugged nature of the land almost precludes the possibility of finding a pass, and the sterility of the soil for hundreds of miles on the route interposes another obstacle to its feasibility, and his promise is that if a practicable route is found, he will do so and so, and with this if staring the committee in the face, they are conducting negotiations predicated upon an uncertainty.

It strikes me that this committee have been negligent of their duty and opportunity that they have not long before this represented to Mr. Huntington, that the character and route of the railroad connection he is endeavoring to promote is not the one to most benefit Oregon, that there is an escape from the necessity of traversing barren deserts, and a substitute of easy grades for the long line of mountain ranges his surveying forces have so far found it impracticable to scale; that a country far vaster than the Willamette valley, lies in the road of the other route, whose productive capabilities are just as good, but which to-day, owing to its isolation and distance from routes of transportation, is practically uninhabited. They might have suggested to Mr. Huntington what must have occurred to him a thousand times before,—but by being so suggested would have given additional momentum to the strategy which is used and useful to seize on and hold the salient points of railroad monopoly, by pressing the necessity of the building of the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake railroad, by means of which all the difficulties of mountain ranges would have been overcome, and all the benefits to a large extent of country now uninhabited realized; and besides by the building of this route the Central Pacific Railroad Company would checkmate the future designs of the Union Pacific Railroad to extend a connection to the Pacific Coast. Fate has decreed that there shall be a Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake railroad some day, but the Winnemucca scheme is thoroughly entangled in an if and relegated to the things doubtful by its chief promoter.

The Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake railroad would open out to productive industry a country whose harvests would quadruple the grain fleet of the Columbia river, and give homes to hundreds of thousands of landless, as beautiful and fruitful as the sun ever shone on. Who will have the temerity to claim that a railroad, starting from a barren waste in Nevada running through hundreds of miles of sage plains, and then striking an inaccessible mountain country, will be of like benefit to commerce and the people? Now, why would it not be well to move in a direction which would open out a country to which we could direct the emigrant when he comes here inquiring for cheap, cultivable lands? I think the committee are stifling every true Oregon interest so long as they hug the delusion of the Winnemucca Railroad scheme, and I am justified by that sentiment to ask them to make a change of base, capture Huntington, and move forward to victory on the line of the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake road.

A TERRIBLE THREAT.—As we were passing through Irish Flat one morning on our way to town, we heard some loud talk in the back yard of a house. A loud but deep voice said: "Where did you put the hoe I saw you wid?" "It's gone intirely, feyther." "Thin I'll break ivry bone in your body wid it if you don't find it."

The War against Disease.

The war waged against disease by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters goes bravely on. Dispatches are constantly received from the cured indicating the decisive nature of the advantages obtained by the great botanic cordial over its formidable adversary. Malarial fevers, constipation, infirmity of the liver and kidneys, general debility, nervous ness and rheumatic ailments invariably yield to this conqueror and preventive of disease. For the infirmities incident to the decline of life it is also an excellent specific. It hastens convalescence and repairs the ravages of ill health by facilitating the conversion of food into blood of a rich and nourishing quality. The appetite is improved by it, and in cases of nervous disease it tranquillizes that great sensorium the brain, far more effectually than any mineral sedative.

THE SEA-SIDE HOUSE,

CLATSOP BEACH,

IS NOW OPEN FOR THE RECEPTION OF VISITORS.

J. C. OLMSTED.

BAY VIEW HOUSE,

BAKER'S BAY, CNITY, W. T.

MR. DEXTER INFORMS THE PUBLIC that his House is now open for the reception of guests. Its advantages in every respect over any other Summer Resort on the Pacific Coast to Oregonians to repeat here. Passengers will say that the place is in plain sight and across the Bay from Astoria, on the sheltered side of Cape Hancock, and very near and adjacent to the Fort and Light house, on Baker's Bay, a beautiful sheet of water, unequaled for Sailing, Rowing, Fishing and Bathing. The dark forest with its picturesque drives, the mountain springs, profusion of wild berries, wild flowers and ferns, the horse trail to the Cape for Equestrians or walkers; it is one of the most delightful Panoramas to the eye ever witnessed. The cosy beaches, its caves, luxuriantly wooded Island, its views of Astoria, Chinook, Fort Stevens, and old Tillamook, in the blue distance.

The courteous hospitality of the officers of the Garrison at the Fort, and also of Mr. Munson and family, of the Lighthouse, make that place well worthy of a visit.

The Salt Water Bathing in the bay, within a few feet of the hotel, excels anything far or near, for warmth of the water and mildness of its waves, far preferable to the heavy surf and cold floods for women, children and invalids, while the sturdy swimmer or those who love the foaming surf, in a few minutes walk will find a beach unsurpassed in beauty, hard and level for one continuous drive of thirty miles. At this end are huge rocks for catching cut into the deep, from which fishermen take Rock, the sea, Bass, Rockfish, Tom Cod, Porgies, etc., etc. Crabs, Clams Oysters, &c., in abundance, (and the Table will never lack a sufficiency for these delicate adjuncts.) Boats upon the Bay, Saddle Ponies for the children, Drives to the Water Wash, Croquet, Swings, Quoits, etc., FREE to Guests.

Prices reduced from the old tariff.

To those who would like to camp out, wood and water and use of ground free (groceries, provisions, milk, eggs, butter, etc. for sale at a small profit. Campers can board at the Hotel if they prefer, at fair rates. A large Livery Stable, two new and fine Tan Pit Alleys, attached to the place.

Stage Office in Oysterville, Postoffice, Wells, Fargo & Co's Office also there. No raw winds or damp fogs, and more beautiful tracks and shady groves cannot be found. The only regret the landlord has, is that his house is not larger, but his grounds are large enough and beautiful enough to warrant next season a Hotel worthy of the surroundings.

C. H. DEXTER, Proprietor.

SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 15, 1876.

LOSING LOVE BOTH.

The d[illegible] little no[illegible]nd of a girl, with cheeks where a pink flush came and went, and blue eyes, with long, golden brown lashes and hair that waved without the aid of pins or irons. I always thought her name was the most suitable that could have been chosen for her, though the only wonder is that old farmer Budd did not name his only daughter Deborah, or Rebecca, or Sarah Jane.

Rosanna had fortunately been her father's grandmother's name, however, and became a Rose Budd into the world; for Mrs. Budd had made the Anna a middle name instead of part of the first, and dropped it.

When I began to like Rose Budd so much that I seriously thought of proposing to her, Hiram Roper liked her too. He was five years older than I; a plain man of 29, with faint scars on his face and a bald spot on the middle of his h[illegible]d. A poor man, studying medicine late in life, because he had not been able to study in his youth, only hoping for his diploma in a year, with the practice all in the future; and I, 24, had the Moswood estate for my own, and money enough to live on comfortably. There could be no comparison between us, I fondly hoped, that would not be favorable to me, and I coolly, though politely, took my place before him, and cut him out on all occasions with Rosebud. I, young and rich and handsome, and, as I supposed, elegantly dressed; he, plain, poor and shabby, looking ten years older than he really was. What chance had he against me?

And so he slipped quietly into the background and I made love to Rosebud, and one day kissed her on the cheek, and told her life would not be worth having to me if I could not win her; and she said nothing, but outblushed all the roses, and let me kiss her again. After that we walked boldly arm-in-arm through the village, and friends teased me, and the other beaux dropped away, and one day I gave her a ring to wear on her left hand forefinger.

Two w[illegible]s from that day I went to London on business. I intended to stay a week, but I was so [illegible]ful that I remained longer. Finally I [illegible]nto business in the city, and began to know people. I visited at the houses of wealthy merchants, and met their wives and daughters, and by degrees began to understand that, although my Rosebud was very fair and sweet, she was not a hot-house flower. In other words, her dress was not like the dress of a fashionable belle; her manners were [illegible]ean, her education poor. She was very good—excessively good, but not an elegant lady. Then, too, she sent me notes in big [illegible]s-slopes, and used little "i" for the personal pronoun, which should have been honored by the capital "I."

And Farmer Budd, with his uncouth coats and wonderful hair and long straggling beard and hair, was not the sort of father-in-law that I should admire; but there was Miss Hannover! Perhaps that fact was the most powerful one of all the workings of my disenchantment; for Miss Hannover was beautiful, all millinery and upholstery; and Papa Hannover called Prince Hannover by his friends, and had his dinner set for forty every day; and wore a fortune in diamonds on his bosom, and made friends wherever he went, by his lavish gifts, and was the greatest stock gambler in London.

Papa Hannover had smiled on me, and commended me how to invest, and had dined me with his [illegible]ghty forty friends, and had said: "Well, Jove, this is Mr. Markham, one of those country gentlemen of whom we are trying to [illegible]e city man."

And I [illegible]had smiled radiantly upon me.

Since then how many tete-a-tetes had I not had [illegible] how many rides! I was learning to [illegible] with her, and I had forgotten to write to Rosebud for two w[illegible]s, when came an anxious little note on blue paper, beginning thus:

DEAR H[illegible]: I take up my pen in hand much [illegible] in my mind [illegible]ding you I know you would write if you were not sick—O, H[illegible]y, if you are sick do fairly [illegible]ff and let [illegible] up and see you. Henry I will not write any [illegible] I hear from you—I am too [illegible]led in my mind. We are all well and in the [illegible] that you will enjoy the same b[illegible]ss. Yours truly,

ROSE BUDD.

P. S. [illegible]pa comes if you are sick. I am so [illegible] my mind.

I [illegible] reply. The awful d[illegible] of Mr. B[illegible]ly care breaking me, so to [illegible] by a single hair. I wrote to Rose, but how? I shall not [illegible] that cowardly letter here. When it was in the box, I did try to fish it out [illegible], but it was too late. It had gone, and its termination, "Thanks, Miss Budd, for [illegible] anxiety concerning my health," I am sure that Mr. Bud[illegible] does not [illegible], was perhaps the worst of all the [illegible] by which I told her, not in frank, honest words, but in a manner that no woman could fail to understand, that I did not choose to remember that we were betrothed.

After that no more letters in yellow envelopes came to trouble me, and I paid attention to Miss Hannover, and invested my money [illegible] Hannover's advice. And days and weeks and months rolled by, and if a thought of my little Rosebud, failing because the sunlight of my love was withdrawn from it, crossed my mind, I drove it away with a sigh. I could not help it, I said; it was fate. Fate meant me for Miss Hannover, for Violette, and so had met, that was all. No, not quite all; one day—I remember it was the day after a [illegible]ndid ball, and I called on Violette, and we had [illegible] alone, and she having heard it, [illegible] of my mother [illegible] stare, and asked me if I did not know she had [illegible] to Mr. Twentyplum for six long months.

"And will be married next week, Mr. Markham," she [illegible]. "So you see you [illegible] me [illegible]."

"And you have only been flirting with me!" I said [illegible]. "Do you know that you gave me [illegible] to hope everything from you?"

"I know, it is [illegible] for me to [illegible] for a drive," said she. "So you must say good [illegible], and don't look so ridiculously [illegible] Mr. Markham. I hate scenes."

And I felt that I [illegible]ed it all, as I went for the last [illegible] down the steps of the Hannover [illegible].

In a fortnight Violette was Mrs. Twentyplum. In [illegible] Mr. Hannover was a [illegible] of those who take a foreign trip with plenty of money in their pockets, while [illegible] have been the fragments of their broken [illegible] at home.

My [illegible] went with his. I had come to London [illegible] a moderate competence. I had increased [illegible] until I was absolutely [illegible]. Now I found myself almost poor.

There remained to me only the Moswood [illegible], but I must be turned into a farm, and I must [illegible] leave my hope of being one of the city millionaires behind me, and become a gentleman farmer—a man of the same social [illegible] as Farmer Budd's father, without his comfortable knowledge of money in the bank to comfort me.

However, with the bursting of the bubble fortune, the circle which had gathered about Hannover had been seemingly scattered to the winds, and people knew that Miss Violette had jilted me, and also that my money was gone. The city had lost many of its charms, and I wrote to the old woman who had kept the house at Moswood for my father until his death, to make it ready for my return. Then selling the furniture of my bachelor rooms, and packing my smaller belongings in a few trunks, I started homeward.

I must go back to Moswood and become a farmer. I should find Rosebud falling gaily away, of course, and yet I knew she would be prettier than ever. How she had loved me. Now I would make amends. I would write as many repentent letters as necessary, and she would, of course, forgive me. No woman ever forgets or ceases to love any man she has ever loved, you know. Yes, after a little maidenly resistance, Rosebud would bloom for me again. I was in spirits of this as the train bore me onward, as I was that the moon would rise that night.

[illegible] is no adage more true than the one that says that misfortunes never come alone, but in [illegible]. Often, of course, one brings the [illegible] in my train the anxieties that had troubled me so thickly about me made me nervous, and so led to a severe accident.

Having alighted at a certain station, I delayed my [illegible] to the carriage until they had started. I remember[illegible] running after them, and then—what do I remember then? Darkness, [illegible], pain, an awakening in a little room, with white curtains and a toilet table, and a vision charmingly dressed, and some one saying slowly:

"Yes, yes, yes; I think he'll do."

And understanding this was my old friend Hiram Roper, I asked:

"How did I come here?" trying to sit up, and failing in the attempt.

"Well," said Hiram, "wife and I were at the station, and I saw you were a good deal hurt, and we brought you on. You know this is my house."

"Yours?" said I. "And you are married and in practice, I suppose?"

"Yes," said Roper. "O, yes; getting on famously. And you've had a bad time, but you'll be on the right road soon. Come and tell him he will, Rosebud."

And there—yes, there was Rose. After I had ruminated on the fact a few minutes I felt that truth was stranger than fiction.

"Are you better, Mr. Markham?" said Rosebud, bending towards me.

Here was a poetical story worked out in our proper persons. "A wounded and repentant hero, I had been sent back to Rosebud, to be nursed and forgiven. Had she not forgiven me, she never would have flown to my aid. All that I could do just then was to squeeze her hand.

She took it away rather quickly; but that was very natural. I had not seen her for three years. She did not know of my contrition. But she had not pined or faded; she was, on the contrary, stouter and rosier than ever.

Just then, Dr. Roper being present, I said nothing, but afterwards, as the evening shadows fell, she brought me tea and toast; and then I took her hand and said:

"Dear Rosebud, how good of you!"

And she answered:

"O, dear, no—don't mention it."

"You are an angel of forgiveness," I said.

"And I—I, have always loved you, Rosebud. 'Tis true, a siren laid her spells upon me, but the hallucination is over."

"I shall think you are wandering again," said she, "if you don't stop talking so. Do take your toast."

"No," said I, "no, not a mouthful Rosebud, until you will assure me that you will forget the past, and once more give me the love—"

"Call me Henry," said I. "Rose if you had hated me, would you be here so kindly ministering to my wants?"

"Here?" said she. "Where should I be but in my own house? I'm sure I've nothing to forgive you, either. Since you allude to our flirtation of three years ago, and since you will talk of it, I will tell you, once for all, that I don't think that we ever should have been happy together. And I always liked Hiram the best, only he was so shy. And my goodness, we were married as soon as he got his diploma."

"Married!" cried I.

"Why, yes," said Rosebud. "How else should I be here? You know this is Dr. Roper's house? Didn't you know I was his wife before? Dear old fellow—he is the best husband woman ever had, I'm sure, and Mr. Markham, I know now that I never really loved you."

I don't know whether that was true or not, but that did not matter. She did not love me then, and does not now, and I lost her.

I live alone at Moswood now, an old bachelor, with a limp, and the dyspepsia, and she and a boquet of little blossoms flourish over the way at Dr. Roper's.

Some time, perhaps, I may marry. Miss Flint would have me and so would the widow Wiggins; but whatever I may get to wear over my heart it will not be a rosebud. I threw that away long ago, and Roper picked it up, and it makes his life fragrant.

Rates are maintained with but little tendency to [illegible]. Capital for loaning purposes, though [illegible] seems to the demand now prevailing, is not being quite so much [illegible] on the market for investment as was the case two months ago, and it is now expected that the large sum required to move the heavy crops on this coast will draw so extensively upon the surplus that a more active call will rule a little later in the season. Though it is highly probable that more numerous opportunities to invest will be presented, it is not at all certain that the drain in that direction will be excessive, or that anything like a stringency in the market will be produced. There are few changes in the general [illegible] of produce markets to note.

The depressed condition of the markets in the staple commodities of wheat and wool is a source of discouragement to producers, but Oregon has as little reason to complain as any other State, on the ground of prices her ills being attributable more to her distance from the principal marts of consumption, and the high freights which she has to pay both inland and by sea. If shippers were compelled to pay as much for wheat here as is paid on the Atlantic coast of course they could not compete with that in the markets of Europe, by just so much as the difference in freights, time of transit and other additional charges which the Oregon product must bear. Oregon wool must be transported nearly 4,000 miles to reach a market, that of the Mississippi valley States only 1,000. Of course the cost of the 3,000 miles transportation must come off at this end of the line, and prices must be that much lower here, until we get a market nearer home. Not desiring to favor any one class, we feel it to be only justice to buyers and exporters of produce here to say that figures show that the heaviest profits fall to the carriers not the merchants or producers. There is again springing up through the country the [illegible] of cheaper transportation and we hope it will result in [illegible] than heretofore.

[illegible] sailing [illegible].

The [illegible] ship John L. Ch[illegible] will leave San Francisco for this port at the usual hour to-morrow.

The bark Edward [illegible] is discharging her cargo at McCraken's wharf.

The brigs Orient and Sea Waif and bark Dawn, from San Francisco with cargoes of assorted merchandise, are discharging at Flanders' wharf.

Thirty-six [illegible] under charter to load wheat were in port at San Francisco on the 8th.
